A full-page photograph of a man with a muscular physique. He is wearing a dark green and brown plaid jacket with the hood up, which is open to reveal his bare torso. He is also wearing light-colored cargo pants with a brown and white striped belt. He is standing on a light-colored, textured concrete floor. Two blue arrow-shaped graphic elements point towards the man from the left side of the page.

WHEN YOU JUST NEED SOMETHING LIGHT

BY DONALD
CHARLES RICHARDSON

In late spring and early autumn, sometimes you need a jacket. Naturally, you don't want to lug around a heavy coat, and sometimes an extra shirt isn't enough. The handy jacket is a necessity for most men. A lot of guys wear one they've had for years. There is nothing wrong with that. The classics don't pay much attention to fashion trends. Once you find a jacket you really like, hang onto it. Over time, it'll get broken in and chances are you will be wearing it for years.
